More bloodshed is feared in Lisbon.

There are rumors that a Republic has been proclaimed in the city of Oporto.

Manuel, though wounded, has been proclaimed King of Portugal.

The weapons used by the assassins were manufactured in America.

When the King and Crown Prince were killed, and Manuel shot, on Saturday, bullets passed through Queen Amelie's hat and boa.

The conspirators, guided by some master mind, intended to wipe out at one stroke the entire royal family of Portugal, to remove Premier Franco and to have a republic declared in the ensuing panic.

Had the plan gone through the master of intrigue who is behind the plot would have come into the open. All that prevented the consummation of the plan was the poor aim of the assassins who were chosen to lit was without a doubt the intention of the assassins to kill King Carlos, the Queen, the Crown Prince and the unhappy youth who has been placed upon the throne of Portugal in so tragic a manner. The action of the Queen in throwing herself in front of the Crown Prince in a heroic effort to save his life was really what saved her life.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw collapsed altogether when she entered the doors of the Matteawan Insane Hospital this afternoon and for the first time saw her husband walking about a long corridor in the company of a nondescript array of gibbering, mouthing madmen.

For the first time, a realization of Harry Thaw's present plight came home to the girl for whom he killed Stanford White.

In a frenzy of grief and rage she declared that she herself would be driven mad if kept in such a place, and with all the vehemence of her spirited young self she called upon Lawyer Dan O'Reilly to lose no time in securing her husband's freedom by the speediest of legal processes.
